Also, Gmail tread new ground by completely doing away with old school folders. Instead, users could now apply "labels," as many as they needed, and thus filter their messages without ever filing it away in a folder. While the labels appear to do the same thing as folders, they're actually far more versatile as we'll find out later in ...

3_1.jpg is the full-sized image. The image contains all detail and is easily readable. And of course it's included in the project's output folder so presumably it can be made use of; 3_1_thumb_0_384.jpg is the thumbnail image. Not surprisingly, it's reduced size means that detail is lost; which is fine for a thumbnail image.
