The book is written as the thoughts of the insane bishop building the spire. What interested me in the book is actually visiting Salisbury cathedral in England and seeing the impossible spire myself. Golding taught at the school attached to Salisbury cathedral and this inspired his story.

Golding's "The Spire" concerns Dean Jocelin's attempt to crown his parish's cathedral with a vast spire, despite the cathedral not having the foundations to support its weight and length. He is opposed by many, learned man and layman alike, who claim that such attempt is a folly that will only end in disaster.

Golding never identifies or places the cathedral in the novel and in fact, the provisional title of the novel was Barchester Spire (Carey, 250); an allusion, perhaps, to Anthony Trollope's Barchester Towers based on the fictional cathedral city of Barchester.
